

Is the cost of healthcare a challenge for your family budget?

Do you have family members or friends who lost their health insurance this month?

Do you know people who wait until they are very sick before going to the Emergency Room, because they can't afford to see a doctor earlier?

The New York Health Act has the answer!

The New York Health Act, a bill before the NYS Legislature, would make healthcare available to everyone, regardless of their ability to pay. It's a single-payer health insurance program, funded by a progressive employment tax, that would save New Yorkers money while providing hassle-free medical services for all.

Learn more at the presentation The New York Health Act; Healing The Health Care Crisis. Speakers will include Dr. Keith Nichols, family practice; Dr. Marguerite Uphoff, pediatrician (ret); and Susan Beckley, small business owner. Assemblyman (ret) Richard Gottfried, author of the Act, will be available virtually to answer questions. Light refreshments will be provided.
